Science Challenge: Surveying Sea Squirts

Local volunteer groups in Connecticut survey sites along the coast and report any new non-native species they see.

They want to focus on the sites that are most at risk for invasion by a non-native sea squirts.

You are a team of ecologists.

You need to give them a recommendation:

Which of two sites should they survey more often?