

Kitchen Crisis

Chef Ana is head chef at the Elephant and Donkey Diner in Washington, DC. She has an important event coming up at the restaurant in one week. However, when she came in to work today, she found that a water pipe in the kitchen had burst, flooding the kitchen. The water caused the labels to fall off some jars. Ana knows that the solids in the jars are either baking soda, baking powder, alum, salt, sugar, or cornstarch. She doesn't know which solid is which, though, and needs your help! She would like you to help identify the solids in the jars. She needs your analysis quickly so she can start preparing for the event.